The 9th Judgment

This is the 9th in the Women's Murder Club series and follows three cases, all which fall onto Detective Lindsay Boxer's desk. A string of cat-burglaries - all resulting in high value jewellery being stolen by the burglar nicknamed by the press, or more specifically Cindy - Lindsay's Crime Desk journalist friend, "Hello Kitty", a high profile, celebrity murder at the home of one of the burglaries and a spate of seemingly senseless murders of mothers and babies. What links all these crimes ...

3.5 Stars The 9th Judgment is a police procedural that gives readers a glimpse into the minds of the criminals, as well as into their home lives. There were two storylines and the chapters jumped back and forth between the two, although the chapters were so short it was easy to follow. My primary complaint was with the sex scenes, which felt a wee bit forced and unrealistic. Bottom line: I found the book to be a quick read that didn't require me to think too much! ☐
