Lost Cities of the Maya: Revealed - All 4

In 1839, British artist Frederick Catherwood and his American companion, John Lloyd Stephens, were the first Westerners to view the immense terraces, fabulous temples, and elaborate palaces of the Mayans' lost cities. Through their published journals, enhanced by extensive research, Fabio Bourbon has pieced together Catherwood's fascinating and mysterious life—including his other expeditions to Egypt, Central America, and California. More than 200 reproductions of Catherwood's original ...

The Maya were once the most powerful kings in Central America, ruling a great civilisation at a time when Europe was still in the dark ages. Then they vanished. When the Conquistadors arrived, they found empty cities. Many believe that the Maya were hit by drought. Archaeologist Kathryn Rees Tylor and epigrapher Mark Zender disagree: the worst effects of the drought would have been felt in the northern half of the Yucatan peninsula, but whatever precipitated the collapse of the Maya ...
